Catechetical Sunday- is an opportunity for all Catholics to rededicate themselves to the mission of handing on the faith and being a witness to the Gospel as a community of Faith.

FROM THE PASTOR

Some individuals claim that faith in Christ is the most important thing of all and that everything else is secondary. St. James in our second reading for this weekend reminds us that faith and works are not enemies but always go together. Both are part of God's grace in our lives and never contradict each other in true believers. Christ's work in our lives inseparably includes both the spiritual and the earthly manifestation of our faith. Both a spiritual gospel without earthly action and a social gospel without faith in Christ is incomplete and degrade Christ's redemptive work in the world.

There is a tendency to emphasize only faith or works and, in this way, we fall into wrong extremes as Martin Luther did when he belittled the letter to James and relegated it to an appendix in his biblical translation because he thought faith was more important and James did not affirm it as he thought. Ironically, by wanting to be biblical, some like Luther disparage the message of Scripture that affirms the complete gospel of Christ.

James, for example, does not teach a different gospel than does the apostle Paul in his letter to the Romans. James simply emphasizes that faith and works are inseparable elements of Christ's saving work in our lives. James warns us about hiding in a merely theoretical faith with no practical relevance. In this passage, James begins and concludes with the affirmation that faith and works are always united. We do all in our lives with faith fueling our good works. It is our faith that fuels the strong social action committees in our family of parishes reaching out to those in need. Faith and works are essential elements of our Christian lives.

Our mental health wellness team this weekend celebrates a Mass for Survivors of Suicide Loss at the 5:00 Saturday Mass on September 14 at Immaculate Heart of Mary. Please pray for all those who lost loved ones through suicide.

Fr. Steve
